Miraculous Prayer to the Little Flower

*O Little flower of Jesus, ever consoling troubled souls with heavenly graces, in our unending intercessions I place my confident trust. From the heart of our Divine Savior, petition the blessings of which I stand in greatest need.....Shower upon me your promised roses of virtue and grace, Dear St. Therese, so that swiftly advancing in sanctity and perfect love of neighbor, I may someday receive the crown of life eternal.
Amen*

July 3, 2022 Fourteenth Sunday in Ordinary Time

Cardinal Raymond Burke's Keynote Address on St. John Paul II's encyclical Evangelium Vitae (The Gospel of Life) at the WSFI Catholic Radio Awards Banquet, April 30, 2022 (Part 1 of 3)

What are the constitutive elements of the Gospel of Life?

1. The Natural Moral Law

The first constitutive element is the truth about the inviolability of innocent human life written in every human heart. In other words, the first constitutive element of the Gospel of Life is the natural moral law, of which the first precept is the safeguarding and fostering of human life. At the very beginning of Evangelium Vitae (The Gospel of Life) Pope John Paul II made clear the relationship of the Church's teaching regarding human life to the moral law which can be known by reason. He declared:

Even in the midst of difficulties and uncertainties, every person sincerely open to truth and goodness can, by the light of reason and the hidden action of grace, come to recognize in the natural law written in the heart (cf. Rom 2:14-15) the sacred good of human life from its very beginning until its end, and can affirm the right of every human being to have this primary good respected to the highest degree. Upon the recognition of this right, every human community and the political community itself are founded (no. 2).

What then is the relationship between the natural moral law and the Church's moral teaching? While God has first revealed to every human heart the truth about human life by the Creation, He has perfectly revealed the truth in all of its splendor by the Redemptive Incarnation of His only-begotten Son. What is more, the coming of God the Son as man into the world, His saving Passion, Death, Resurrection, and Ascension, and His abiding presence in the Church through the outpouring of the Holy Spirit give man the grace to live fully in accord with the truth. Pope John Paul II explained the relationship thus:

Through the words, the actions and the very person of Jesus, man is given the possibility of "knowing" the complete truth concerning the good of human life. From this "source" he receives, in particular, the capacity to "accomplish" this truth perfectly (cf. Jn 3:21), that is, to accept and fulfil completely the responsibility of loving and serving, of defending and promoting human life. In Christ, the Gospel of life is definitively proclaimed and fully given. This is the Gospel which, already present in the Revelation of the Old Testament, and indeed written in the heart of every man and woman, has echoed in every conscience "from the beginning", from the time of creation itself, in such a way that, despite the negative consequences of sin, it can also be known in its essential traits by human reason (no. 24).

The human conscience, if it has not been corrupted by confusion and error, naturally recognizes the inviolable dignity of every human life and commands that it be safeguarded and promoted.

2. Natural Moral Law and Conscience

Essentially connected with the discussion of the natural moral law is the correct understanding of conscience. Pope Saint John Paul II, relating the intent of his Encyclical Letter, drew particular attention to the relationship of the Gospel of Life with conscience. He reflected upon the situation of the conscience which "is today subjected, also as a result of the penetrating influence of the media, to an extremely serious and mortal danger: that of confusion between good and evil, precisely in relation to the fundamental right to life" (no. 24). He did not fail to warn about the gravity of the situation, declaring: "When conscience, this bright lamp of the soul (cf. Mt 6:22-23), calls 'evil good and good evil' (Is 5:20), it is already on the path to the most alarming corruption and the darkest moral blindness" (no. 24).

At the same time, the very existence of the conscience gives hope of a transformation of the situation. Pope John Paul II observed: "And yet all the conditioning and efforts to enforce silence fail to stifle the voice of the Lord echoing in the conscience of every individual: it is always from this intimate sanctuary of the conscience that a new journey of love, openness and service to human life can begin" (no. 24). Notwithstanding pervasive confusion and error regarding the fundamental truth of the inviolable dignity of human life, the Gospel of Life corresponds always to the deepest desire of man, which is to know and live the truth in love. Catholic radio stands as a sign of contradiction to the communications media which, to the harm of many, are agents of the culture of death. The proclamation of the Gospel of Life should be marked by a profound confidence in the human heart upon which the moral law has been inscribed. At the same time, it should be ready to illustrate how it is at the very foundation of the common good. (Part 2: next week's bulletin)
