Cardinal Burke: Faithful Catholics must remain in the Church, hold bishops accountable to Apostolic Tradition

'If everyone leaves, the Church would otherwise fall into the hands of those who destroy the Catholic faith and its practice.'

Louis Knuffke (LifeSiteNews, Aug. 29, 2022) In an interview with German Catholic news outlet Die Tagespost, Cardinal Raymond Leo Burke encouraged faithful Catholics to remain in the Church in fidelity to Christ, and to work from within the Church for a much-needed ecclesiastical reform, even should it require openly correcting bishops when they betray the faith.

“Catholics must bear witness to the truth of the faith,” Burke said. Addressing the distress of orthodox Catholics at the agenda of pro-synodal bishops, such as those of Germany and Ireland, who are aggressively pushing for “another church and another faith,” Burke tried to bolster the laity in their witness to Christ, saying, “In the tradition of the Church, a synod is a way to find out how to defend and promote the Catholic faith, not to create another Church and another faith [which is precisely what some bishops in this countries are proposing to do, calling people “rigid” who faithfully follow the teachings of Christ & His Church – Fr. Campbell]. I think these good Catholics, as painful as it is, must remain in their communities and fight for the truth of the faith.”

“If everyone leaves,” he continued, “the Church would otherwise fall into the hands of those who destroy the Catholic faith and its practice. It is important that the faithful do not leave the Church, because Christ promised us to always remain with us in the Church. We thus remain with Christ, even if we have to speak very openly with our own bishops when they propose something that does not correspond to the Catholic faith. We must return to the sacred tradition.”

Emphasizing the need to be faithful to the Church’s Apostolic Tradition, the cardinal declared, “To call fidelity to Catholic doctrine rigidity is simply wrong.” Burke reminded the lay faithful that they have the right and duty to express their concerns about the Church to their pastors. He also recalled to bishops their duty to uphold the faith, which they undertook by oath at their episcopal consecration.

“The dynamism of the Catholic faith comes from its continuity,” Burke said. “Faith is God’s work and comes to us through the tradition of the apostles. This is not rigidity, but fidelity to tradition, and bishops are obliged to do so by the oath they took when they were ordained bishops. To call fidelity to Catholic doctrine rigidity is simply wrong. The faithful have the right and the duty to express their concerns about the Church. Believers should openly exercise this right – it is in canon law.

The cardinal doubled down on the need for good Catholics to correct their bishops when they have spoken or acted against the faith, saying, “In cases where the faith is betrayed even within the Church itself, it is even more important for her to insist on Catholic doctrine and practice. They must understand that they are not free to do so, but that they are obliged to defend the Catholic faith in these times. Obedience can never command us to do anything that is against faith and good morals.”

Asked what practical means the faithful might use in defense of the faith, the prelate pointed to the effectiveness of the means of communication as well as the publication of the great Catholic classics. “First of all,” Burke said, the faithful need “to use the means of communication to spread the message and, for example, to publish the classical expositions of the Catholic faith – from the Fathers of the Church, the great theologians and the reliable authors of the present. Insist on talking to the pastor about these issues.”

Cardinal Burke remains a strong voice for faithful Catholics, who appreciate his outspoken defense of the Church’s authentic doctrine and practice.

Science Gone Mad: Transgender in the Womb

Dr. Steven Mosher, President, Population Research Institute (PRI), www.pop.org, 8/19/22

Leading psychologist at Boston Children’s Hospital, Dr. Kerry McGregor, PsyD, has claimed that children know they are transgender as early as in the womb. The video containing this declaration was made private almost immediately but did not escape unnoticed by the public. The hospital is known for affirming transgender children as young as two and boasts of its pioneering provision of transgender surgeries to minors.

“The same people who deny the humanity of the unborn are now claiming that unborn children can sense their gender,” says PRI President Steven Mosher. “As if the transgender craze weren’t bizarre enough already. It’s not enough for them to claim that two-year-olds and five-year-olds should be allowed to freely ‘transition,’ they now have to impose their delusions on the unborn.”

Radical "Respect for Marriage Act" would Undermine Marriage

(LifeSite News, Aug. 31, 2022) The so-called Respect for Marriage Act (RFMA) would enshrine same-sex "marriage" into federal law, override laws in 35 states, require the federal government to recognize same-sex "marriage," polygamous "marriages" or any other redefinitions of marriage if a state approves them, and open the door to drastic attacks on religious freedom. Shamefully, the bill, sponsored by Democrats with many Republican supporters, is being proposed in the event that the Supreme Court overturns its 2015 Obergefell decision that mandated recognition of same-sex "marriage" nationwide.

Archbishop Salvatore Cordileone of San Francisco, chairman of the U.S. Bishops Committee on Marriage & Family Life, said the "Respect for Marriage Act" would do the opposite of what its name implies, by mandating that states and the federal government honor whatever may be deemed 'marriage' by any other state." Children have a "basic right" to be raised by a mother and father in an exclusive, lifelong marriage whenever possible, he stressed.

The Atlantic magazine attacks Catholics who pray the Rosary: In an Aug. 14, 2022 article appearing in The Atlantic magazine, "How Extremist Gun Culture Is Trying to Co-Opt the Rosary," author Paul Bedford says: "Just as the AR-15 rifle has become a sacred object for Christian nationalists in general, the rosary has acquired a militaristic meaning for radical-traditional (rad trad) Catholics. On this extremist fringe, rosary beads have been woven into a conspiratorial politics and absolutist gun culture." Elizabeth Yore responds, saying that this is a warning shot across the bow, signaling that Catholics who pray the Rosary, remain faithful to the Church's teachings and who oppose the culture of death promoted by the socialist New World Order can expect to face persecution.
